Dear Friends and Supporters,

Fiscal year 2011 has been a year of excitement and change, as well as a year to remember the beginning of the epidemic. On June 5, 2011 we observed the 30th anniversary of the first mention of what we now know as HIV infection in the Center for Disease Control's weekly publication of public health information and recommendations. So many things have changed since then, but we are still living with HIV and AIDS and the ramifications of a disease that affects over 15,000 people in Colorado.

This year has also brought change to Colorado AIDS Project. After a 4 year process, the Board of Directors of CAP voted to merge with three other Colorado AIDS Services Organizations. On October 1, 2011, the new, statewide Colorado AIDS Project was formed by the merger of Northern Colorado AIDS Project (NCAP) in Ft. Collins, Southern Colorado AIDS Project (SCAP) in Colorado Springs, Western Colorado AIDS Project (WestCAP) in Grand Junction, and what has now become Denver Colorado AIDS Project (formerly, simply, CAP).

While we continue to evolve to meet the needs of our clients, we are excited to implement the three components of the National AIDS Strategy here at CAP.

Reducing the number of people who become infected with HIV
Through our testing sites, we have tested 1,634 people this fiscal year, an increase of 19% over last year. We have also added screening for Hepatitis C as well as other sexually transmitted infections (STI) including gonorrhea and chlamydia. This carries huge importance because these STIs can be indicators of risky behaviors that increase the likelihood of becoming infected with HIV. Testing also gives us the opportunity to discuss risk factors and educate those getting tested about choices that will help keep them safe from HIV infection.

In addition, CAP was approved as the first legal syringe access program in the city and county of Denver this year. As we know, sharing needles with someone who is infected with HIV is a very risky behavior, and we hope that providing clean needles and disposing of used needles will reduce the transmission of HIV here in Denver.

We also have researched and will launch a program called Healthy Relationships to reach out to folks with HIV. Through group discussions and education, we hope to teach various ways to keep these individuals and their partners safe.

Increasing access to care and optimizing health outcomes for people living with HIV
The goal of medical case management is to make sure that our clients are seeing their doctors, getting their labs done regularly and following their doctors' medical advice. This year our case managers saw 1,995 clients, a 10% increase over the prior fiscal year. 396 of these were new to our programs. Through 62,227 contacts, our case managers helped our clients navigate their way through complex medical and non-medical issues to increase their overall health and well being. With 54% of our clients over the age of 45, one of the health outcomes we have been working on this year is HIV and aging.

Reducing HIV-related health disparities
CAP clients are a diverse bunch that reflects the epidemic here in Colorado. 65% are gay or bisexual. Fifty percent of CAP clients are caucasian with about 20% African American and 20% Latino. This year we have seen an increase in the number of foreign born clients and families. Language barriers have lead to health disparities despite our bilingual staff. To help meet the needs of these and other non-English speakers, we added outside translation services to our bilingual staff. Through outside translators, our clients from other countries can now tell us their needs in their own language.

30 years after AIDS became a household word, we’re still fighting. We fight to provide services to those living with the disease, we fight for fairness for everyone affected by HIV/AIDS and we fight to curb the spread of the disease. Until there is an end, we will continue our fight.

Sincerely,

Ruth Pederson

About Colorado AIDS Project

The mission of Colorado AIDS Project (CAP) is to prevent HIV infection and improve lives affected by HIV and AIDS.

Colorado AIDS Project (CAP) is a 28 year-old community based organization that helps those living with HIV/AIDS, and those at risk, to make healthy choices for a self sufficient, enhanced quality of life. CAP provides innovative, individualized services to those most in need, educates high risk populations, and advocates for social and health care equity.

CAP empowers those living with or at risk of HIV to live healthier, enhanced lives by providing two different sets of services.

First, CAP supports over 2,600 clients living with HIV each year, through such support services as case management, mental health and substance abuse counseling, housing assistance, transportation, food bank, employment, and financial assistance. Each support service includes the ultimate goals of working with our clients to make healthy choices, increase their stability and access healthcare for enhanced, healthier lives. Over the last quarter century, Colorado AIDS Project has served 75 percent of the men, women, and children who have lived with HIV/AIDS in Colorado.

Secondly, CAP helps people live healthier lives by educating those at risk of HIV, and working with them to choose safer behaviors so that they can decrease that risk over time. CAP achieves these goals through a spectrum of education and prevention services, addressing the broad population through media and community education, and providing more intensive, therapeutically based individual and group programs for those most likely to become HIV positive.

CAP also provides regular free HIV testing on-site and at an off-site location in conjunction with Denver Health. In 2011 CAP provided more than 1,500 free HIV tests.

AIDS Walk Colorado is the Rocky Mountain Region’s largest and most successful HIV and AIDS fundraiser. More than 8,000 people from throughout the state came together in Denver’s Cheesman Park for the 24th annual AIDS Walk Colorado, fueled by donations from more than 13,000 individuals, to raise money for vital services for HIV/AIDS clients of Colorado AIDS Project and more than 20 other outstanding AIDS service organizations.

The event served as a day to remember those we have lost to the disease with prominent speakers, panels of the AIDS Memorial Quilt, the third annual AIDS Walk Colorado Volleyball Tournament, held in conjunction with CGVA and the second annual Diva Dash Stiletto Fun Run, in addition to live music, vendors, food and beverages.

The 2nd annual Red Ball, Igniting Awareness for World AIDS Day, brought a sense of edginess to Colorado AIDS Project’s canon of signature events. This ultra-chic event blended high-end local fashion designers, top-notch and innovative hair stylists and exquisite makeup artists to produce an alternative and outrageous runway experience unlike anything else in Denver.

Emceed by CW and Fox31 entertainment reporter Chris Parente, Red Ball combined fiery fashions, frosty hair designs and a sultry after party with hot DJ grooves from DJ Rockstar Aaron and a cool atmosphere to draw local awareness to World AIDS Day while raising much-needed funds to support CAP’s services.
On September 11, 2011, bartenders from participating bars across the city came together under one roof to battle head to head in a competition to be named the best of the best. Bartenders pulled out all the stops in a Mixology competition, creating original drink recipes in a number of different categories including best shot, best cocktail and best use of sponsor liquor. Attendees were able to visit each bartending station and sample all of the creations before casting their votes for their favorites.

Following the Mixology competition, bartenders took to the stage in a dazzling display of technical mixing mastery in the Flair competition. Tossing, spinning, juggling, music and choreography added to the compelling display of extreme bartending.

A live auction of various items and gift baskets donated by each participating bar rounded out the evening, raising funds for Colorado AIDS Project.

Maybe you’ve seen us pouring beer at Denver Wrangler, cheering on our favorite lube wrestlers, bowling for a cause or dancing our way down Colfax for Denver PrideFest.

For Colorado AIDS Project, summer months are filled with fun events and activities that allow us to be present in the community to raise awareness for our cause and funds to support our programs.
Volunteers are truly an integral part of a successful non-profit organization. Colorado AIDS Project’s volunteers contribute in all aspects of the organization. Performing administrative tasks, working the reception desk, helping clients in the Food Bank, administering HIV tests, canvassing at festivals, community outreach and helping with special events are just some of the areas in which CAP’s volunteers help.

In 2010 - 2011, CAP utilized the help of 489 volunteers who contributed 10,567 hours of service. That amount of hours translates to $190,628.68 worth of time and effort that went directly to providing client services.

CAP is truly grateful to the many dedicated individuals and groups who give so generously of their time and talent.

Ways You Can Support Colorado AIDS Project

Individual Donations
Whether memorializing a friend or loved one, standing up for a cause you believe in, acting as a role model for a child or peer, or supporting the organization that has supported you or a loved one, individual giving is the number one way that you can support Colorado AIDS Project. Gifts can be made online, over the phone via credit card, or can be mailed directly to CAP. In addition to cash support, you can spread awareness for CAP. When you tell people in your life about your support of CAP, they are more likely to support CAP as well.

Support Special Events
When you purchase a ticket to an event such as Red Ball, purchase something in a silent auction or collect donations in support of AIDS Walk Colorado, your contributions have a direct impact on CAP’s bottom line. While many governmental and private grants are given to support specific programs, funds raised by special events are completely unrestricted and can be used to support any of CAP’s programs.

Investment Assets
Gifts of mutual funds, stocks, bonds and mortgage-free real estate can be given complete or used to create income generating plans. You can circumvent potential capital gains taxes and receive a charitable gift tax deduction. With a retained life estate agreement, you continue to enjoy real estate property for the remainder of your life.

Retirement Plans
You can appoint Colorado AIDS Project as a beneficiary of your retirement plan or use the plan to create a life income gift. Your estate will avoid the income tax that would have been due on your plan upon your death.

Income Producing Gift Plans
If you invest in a charitable remainder trust, pooled income fund or charitable gift annuity, you can make a significant gift to CAP and potentially increase your annual income, reduce your taxes, and benefit from asset diversification. You can also avoid capital gains tax if appreciated property is given.

Bequests
Gifts by bequest reassure you that your assets will be used after your lifetime for charitable purposes. You can declare a specific dollar amount, a percentage, residual or contingent gift of the remainder of your estate.

Matching Gifts
Corporate Matching Gifts are an easy and effective way to increase the impact of your gift to Colorado AIDS Project.

Many employers will match - even double - the charitable contribution portion of an employee’s donation to CAP.

The process is simple. Complete your employer’s matching gift form including your information and the amount of your personal contribution, and mail it to the Development Department at CAP. We’ll do the rest!

In addition to increasing the impact your gift can have on CAP, your company will receive increased visibility and recognition within the community as a philanthropic organization.

Check with your company’s Human Resources department to find out if your company offers a matching gift program. If it doesn’t, suggest that a matching gift program be started!
